How do school museums and our symposia forge links among us?

- Forging links (or creating links as we named the Symposium 2013) is one of the fundamental missions of museums that report past stories for present times so that previous experience and wisdom can build tomorrow in a united Europe and a connected world.

Creating links in education

- international links
- 30 years school
- museum symposiums
- between English and
- various mother tongues
- 'let every language
- celebrate God' (Rom, 14, 11)

Slovenia, Ljubljana and its schools, and the Slovenian School Museum.

- Slovenia, this diverse country measuring just over 20,000 km² between the northern part of the Adriatic in Trieste's hinterland, the eastern part of the Julian Alps in the upper river basin of the Sava and the Soča
- very diverse landscapes with a varied climate

Ljubljana

Ljubljana EMONA

- ancient story of the Argonauts and the Golden Fleece

- The 5200 year old wooden wheel found a few years ago in the Ljubljana Marshes thus becomes a symbol of travel, of transport and of other connections
- linked to e.g. Tyrol (Bled), Bavaria (Škofja Loka)

From Slovenian Lands to the Slovenia

- In the past, Slovenia was shaped by different Slovenians lands in which Slovenians lived in the provinces of the Habsburg Empire together with speakers of another language or languages. Connections among Slovenians in different provinces were forged and maintained through linguistic and cultural links.

Ljubljana

- The medieval town originally grew squeezed between the River Ljubljanica and the castle hill, very close to the ruins of the Roman town of Emona, which ties us to ancient traditions. In memory of the ancient roots of Christianity, the mighty figures of the Emona bishops were erected, symbolically bearing the cupola of the Baroque Cathedral in Ljubljana, which became the seat of a diocese in 1461.

Ljubljana and history

- Ljubljana in 1821 hosted an important international political meeting – the Congress of the Holy Alliance.
- Ljubljana as the centre of the central Slovenian land (Kranjska/Carniola), particularly after the 1895 earthquake and the very dedicated efforts by the then mayor Ivan Hribar

Ljubljana - education and school museum

- Ljubljana as educational centre
- teachers' association
- In August 1898, on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of Franz Joseph's rule, the Federation of Slovenian Teachers' Associations established its school museum
- The present-day Slovenian School Museum is the successor of that first museum

Museums of school & education

- Museum ...forging links with similar scholarly and museum institutions, some from abroad, and most of all with people determined to seek differences, similarities and international connections in the field of the history of education and its presentation as a part of cultural development.
- We are very pleased to have every single one of you here at this symposium in Ljubljana!

Dr. Branko Šuštar, coordinator of Symposium 2013
